Patent settlements raise important questions about the relationship between antitrust and intellectual property law. Few areas of antitrust law are as controversial with conflicting decisions of different appellate courts and inconsistency in the positions taken by the FTC, DOJ and State Antitrust Enforcers. The issue is being challenged before the Supreme Court, numerous lower courts, and Congress. David Balto will discuss why these conflicts have arisen and their possible resolution.

1.0 hour of Standard CLE credit will be applied for. A plated lunch will be served.
